for HPV!

HPVI

HomeoPathic Virus Inhibitor

Did you know, that according to 2010 CDC \(Center for Disease Control\) estimates on HPV infection rates in the US, that more than 20 million people had the HPV Virus (genital human papillomavirus) in 2009, and that this number was expected to increase by an estimated 6 million persons per year? Meaning that during this New Year of 2010, there could be anywhere from 20-30 million people infected with HPV! Currently there is a vaccination for young girls that only protects against four known strains of HVP, of which there are 40 strains of HPV that can cause warts, genital warts and anal warts. And if you are a guy, you are out of luck, because there is no vaccination for men currently! So if you do become infected with HPV, just what really are your treatment options?

The Infection Rates of HPV are Skyrocketing!

Those are some shocking and intimidating numbers. And still, modern day science and all the many revelations that it has procured fails to address this out-of-control HPV virus and the many lives that it affects on a daily basis! As according to the CDC, more than 50% of sexually active adults will contract the HPV virus during their lifetime, and that the chances of you getting HPV from another partner has been upped from what was once a 1-4, to a 1-3 odd, and now a staggering and frightening 1-2 risk!

Another interesting factoid about HPV is that, according to medical experts, the virus can naturally clear on its own in sufferers—usually within 1 to 2 years, once the body's immune system is able to better defend itself. Adding to the muster of these factoids, another one we can toss your way is that 90% of people who have HPV don't know they have it until signs and symptoms, like genital warts, anal warts or an abnormal pap smear reveal it; and there is currently no way to test for HPV in men or women, aside from abnormal pap smears, until the virus has surfaced, showing external physical symptoms; generally stress can cause the immune system to falter, and then HPV can surface. Otherwise, in many cases HVP can lie dormant.

So what the real numbers are could be astounding!

In so many words, Genital human papillomavirus is OUT OF CONTROL!!!

Acai Berry: Is one of the World's most powerful antioxidants. This extract has been shown to provide increased energy levels, improved sexual performance, improved digestion, detoxification, high fiber content, improved skin appearance, improved heart health, improved sleep, reduction of cholesterol levels and the ability to combat free radicals; cells that cause cancer.

Grapeseed Extract: Is a powerful antioxidant that contains polyphenol, which is a resveratrol that has been shown to interfere with cancer cell growth and proliferation, as well as induce apoptosis, among a variety of potential chemopreventive effects.

Red Raspberry Seed: Is a powerful antioxidant that contains Ellagic acid which has been shown to have some anti-cancer properties. It can act as an antioxidant, and has been found to cause cell death in cancer cells in the laboratory. In other laboratory studies, ellagic acid seems to reduce the effect of estrogen in promoting growth of breast cancer cells in tissue cultures. There are also reports that it may help the liver to break down or remove some cancer-causing substances from the blood.

Burdock Root: Burdock has been used for centuries as a blood purifier, clearing the bloodstream of some toxins and as a diuretic (helping rid the body of excess water by increasing urine output), as well as a topical remedy for skin problems such as acne, eczema, rosacea and psoriasis, due to the strong antiviral and antibacterial properties it demonstrates.

Ashwagandha root: Ashwagandha (Withania somnifera) is an herb that is used as a general tonic by helping the body adapt to stress. Additionally, this herb has been shown to possess powerful antioxidant activity as well as an ability to support a healthy immune system by showing strong antiviral properties.

Echinacea Root (Angustifolia): Echinacea increases activity of the immune system. Unlike vaccines, which are only active only against specific diseases, Echinacea stimulates the overall activity of the cells responsible for fighting all different kinds of infections, both bacterial and viral. Unlike antibiotics, which are directly lethal to bacteria, Echinacea makes our own immune cells more efficient in attacking bacteria, viruses and abnormal cells, including cancer cells.

Passion Flower: Has a long history of use among Native Americans in North America and were adapted by the European colonists. It has been used in many forms for thousands of years to treat insomnia, hysteria, and epilepsy, and is also valued for its painkilling, antiviral and antibacterial properties.

Fenugreek: Fenugreek has also been used topically and internally for thousands of years to treat inflammation, boils, wounds, and eczema; it also works as a powerful internal antiviral and antibacterial agent.

Hydrangea Root: Researchers at the Children's Hospital in Boston, Massachusetts and at the Harvard School of Dental Medicine in Cambridge, Massachusetts identified a substance, halofuginone, that is found in the hydrangea root, and in other parts of the plant, that shows great promise for treating autoimmune diseases because of its strong antiviral properties.

Barberry Root: This herb has been used for thousands of years to relieve hepatitis, colic, jaundice, diabetes and consumption. It is a fast-acting and very powerful internal antiviral.

Germanium: Has been shown to have the ability to improve immune system functions in the body, and is commonly used a holistic method of treating cancer patients.

Suntheanine: Human clinical research has suggested that Suntheanine may have application in improving the quality of sleep, diminishing normal symptoms of premenstrual syndrome (PMS), improving learning performance, heightening mental acuity, promoting concentration, reducing negative side effects of caffeine and supporting the immune system, as well as reducing stress and anxiety levels and naturally treating depression.

What About People that Show Signs & Symptoms of the HPV Virus?

There are the millions of people that are showing signs of this virus either through diagnosed abnormal pap smears, genital warts or anal warts. And with few medical HPV treatment options, such as freezing, burning or surgically removing the warts off, or using prescribed creams that just boost the immune system, the options are scarce, to say the least! The CDC also says that in many cases the body will naturally put the HPV virus back into dormancy within 2 years, once the immune system is able to effectively combat the virus – that's a long time to wait!

For those who suffer from HPV, you have a few options that you can currently pursue, as there is no prescription cure for HPV currently.

1. You can see your doctor and have HPV treated using embarrassing and painful freezing, burning or scalpel surgeries.
2. You can try out a new cream called Adara for HPV that is costly and prescribed, and that has only been shown to be semi-effective in most patients.
3. You can try a bunch of all-natural and very costly oil extracts that can burn your skin or cause irritations, and that rarely work.
4. You can seek out an All-natural Remedy for HPV that boosts your immune system and attacks the virus, helping your body better defend against this virus and naturally clear it from your system faster.

HPV Questions & Answers

Q: Is there a test for HPV

A: NO. The only test that currently exists is a pap smear in females that shows abnormal cells that can test positive for the HPV virus. There currently is no test for males. However, your doctor many times will pour certain vinegars on what they may deem as signs of the HPV virus, and if it turns white, that generally means that you may have contracted the virus.

Q: What are my treatment options for HPV? is there a remedy?

A: There is not any cure for the HPV virus, but experts estimate that many times it can go away on its own when your body naturally fights it off into dormancy. But like herpes, it can reoccur from time to time. The current treatment methods for visible signs include, laser surgery, electric surgery, chemical surgery, natural surgery using unproven and dangerous oils that can burn you, and HPV daily supplements that boost your immune system and allow you to naturally fight off the virus.

Q: What should I avoid when naturally treating HPV, or seeking a natural remedy for HPV?

A: Avoid any false claims, and companies that don't back their product with a money back guarantee. Many companies sell oils and creams that can burn your skin and spread the infection further, making your situation worse. Seek out an all natural remedy for HPV that boosts your immune system using antivirals and antioxidants, and one that lowers your stress levels—one of the most commonly associated symptoms to noticeable signs of infection: stress-related HPV outbreaks!

Q: Where can I find such a natural remedy for HPV?

A: A Natural Remedy for HPV like HPV!

The Answer: Check out this Website, you can learn a lot more about the virus and find a remedy that really works for about the cost of one doctor visit!

Three Common Genital Warts Treatment Myths Exposed

There are so many myths that we are finding out on the web about how you can remedy genital warts or anal warts using some rather silly concoctions. We have actually been rather frightened by some of the suggested at-home all natural treatments for genital warts and anal warts. So if you are looking to see which ones work and which ones don't, we aim to help you become better informed about the HPV virus by debunking these terrible myths, so that you don't accidentally use them yourself and not see the results that you would like to see with an all-natural remedy for HPV.

Indeed, since there are so many crazy myths and products out there, we could never hope to cover them all for you, so instead we decided to start with the top three ways that WON'T work to cure genital or anal warts naturally, and they are as follows.

1. Duct Tape: some people say in forums that you can just apply duct tape to your genital warts or your anal warts and after a few days they will be gone. Wrong! There is nothing in the adhesive that will cure the warts. This is a total myth and you could actually spread the warts further by not allowing them to breathe under the duct tape.

2. Tea Tree Oil: A very powerful antiseptic and antiviral extract from a plant that grows around rivers and waterbeds. This is great when mixed with moisturizers and other delivery systems. However, when applied directly to genital warts or anal warts, the sensitive areas of the body can be easily burned, and generally speaking, most people don't see results.

3. Apple Cider Vinegar: a lot of people think that you can apply this vinegar to your genital warts so that they will go away. When in fact, this is actually how many doctors will test to see if your warts or red bumps are signs of HPV. This will not cure your warts, and can actually irritate or burn your skin.

Try using a Natural Remedy for Genital Warts that boosts your immune system to naturally fight off the virus safely, effectively and affordably in your own home!
